INTERNATIONAL ELECTIVE POLICY FOR GME

GENERAL STATEMENT: An international elective in either a clinical or research experience is intended to give the participating house staff member a more global perspective in the cultural, social, economic and political issues of another country that may impact that nation's healthcare system. This elective rotation allows participants to:

- Be of service to an international community while broadening their thinking about the practice of medicine, or
- Participate in research projects that are not available (in the same capacity) at the University of Iowa.

Learning occurs through both independent study and hands-on experiences. Mentoring by the elective's director or identified faculty helps the house staff member design the experience to meet the goals and objectives set out in this policy.

GOALS AND OBJECTIVES: By completing an international elective, the house staff member will continue to develop the attitudes, skills and knowledge necessary to achieve the following goals:

- Practice medicine and/or participate in research in its socio-cultural context;
- Gain an appreciation for another country's healthcare system while:
 - Providing healthcare services and medical aid to an underserved population and becoming their advocate, or
 - Participating in healthcare research that is not readily available at the University of Iowa;
- Grow in multicultural sensitivity; and
- Continue the life-long learning process associated with the practice of medicine and/or medical research.

Specific objectives of the international clinical and research experiences should include but are not limited to:

- Developing the capability of effectively understanding, living in and working in another culture;
- Developing a clear and more critical understanding of one's own personal/professional objectives;
- Enhancing interpersonal communication and teamwork skills;
- Improving his/her ability to teach other medical professionals;
- Consideration of how multiple perspectives such as economics, law, politics and religion impact the practice of medicine; and
- Learning about alternative healthcare systems in a resource deficient area.

In addition, clinical experiences should include the following objectives:

- Understanding the patient and societal perspectives of practicing medicine in another culture; and
- Improving his/her understanding of whole-person, whole-family, and whole-community medicine.

ELIGIBILITY: House staff from any department at the University of Iowa Health Care interested in approval for an international elective must meet the following eligibility requirements:

- Complete the application found online; proposed rotations to a house staff member's home country will generally not be approved. Exceptions will be considered by the committee on an individual basis.
- Submit application materials to the GME Office for review by the International Health Elective Subgroup (Subgroup) at least 90 days prior to the beginning date of the rotation.
- Provide the dates for the international experience, including an anticipated departure date for approval. Clinical experiences should not exceed 8 weeks.
- Show evidence that the house staff member will provide his/her own funds for travel, room, board and any other expenses incurred during the rotation. If approved by the Subgroup, the house staff member's stipend will continue – if the elective is not approved, the house staff member's stipend will be suspended during the time they are gone and restarted upon return to UI Health Care rotations. Health insurance will also continue as per the house staff policy if the elective is approved; however, it is strongly recommended that house staff members traveling outside of the country also purchase travel health insurance.

- If the clinical practice of medicine is to be undertaken and temporary malpractice insurance is available in the country of the rotation, provide evidence that it has been purchased. If temporary malpractice insurance is not available, provide evidence of that information. Coverage by the Iowa State Tort Claims Act will not be available to the house staff member during an international clinical experience.
- A visit to the UI Health Care Travel Clinic is required prior to leaving. An email to the Chair of the International Health Elective Committee is required after visiting the UI Health Care Travel Clinic.
- The International Health Elective Committee can provide advice about international travel if the applicant desires. Interested applicants should notify the Chair of the International Health Elective Committee to take advantage of this advice.

SUBGROUP COMPOSITION: The International Health Elective Subgroup of the Graduate Medical Education Committee will serve as a clearinghouse of expertise and resources for any house staff member or graduate medical education program who is interested in arranging educational rotations in underserved regions of the world. The Subgroup will be comprised of the following members:

- Chair – Current or former Program Director of a participating house staff training program. The position of Chair will rotate every three years, with approval of the GMEC Chair;
- Two additional Program Directors or Associate Program Directors, preferably from programs other than the Chair's program;
- One or more other interested faculty members; and
- One or more interested house staff members.

The GMEC Chair shall appoint Subgroup members, in consultation with the Subgroup's Chair. Proposed modifications to this policy will first be discussed and approved by the Subgroup, and then carried forward by its Chair to the GMEC Chair for consideration by and approval of the GMEC.

ALLOCATION OF SUPPORT: If an international elective rotation is approved by the house staff member's Program Director and by the Subgroup, then the house staff member is eligible for stipend continuation by UI Health Care.

Rotations in countries with established preceptors with connections to the UI Health Care are strongly encouraged. Support will be granted to the house staff member if $\geq 80\%$ of the Subgroup reviews the application and agrees that the rotation is appropriately designed, the applicant meets the eligibility requirements, and the rotation is not deemed to be dangerous.

Approved applications will be reported to the Designated Institutional Official for GME and to the GME Committee.

ASSESSMENT: A formal evaluation of the experience shall be required by the Subgroup. This assessment shall be completed within 6 months of completion of the rotation and shall be comprised of the following:

- For clinical electives only, a presentation of 30-60 minutes to house staff members, intended to share information and experience – notify the Chair of the International Health Elective so others may attend the presentation (e.g. the CCOM Global Opportunities Interest Group);
- A written evaluation by the supervising physician at the site of service, submitted to and monitored by the Program Director; and
- A written evaluation by the house staff member of the international experience elective submitted to the Program Director and copied to the Chair of the International Health Elective.
